

SPORTS ABILITY SCHOOL INCLUSION PROGRAM

"All of us had an absolute blast and I was so glad that you were able to come to our school.

It was really cool that we were able to learn a bit more about inclusion. I was pretty amazed when we were able to hold your 2000 Olympics Silver Medal! We really hope to see you again"

Sports Ability Program

TEACHING INCLUSION IN SCHOOLS THROUGH FUN AND GAMES

Sports Ability aims to:

- ✔ increase awareness of disability and improve attitudes in schools through facilitating fun and inclusive sports and games
- ✔ unpack the word "inclusion" and show how everyone benefits when people are included
- ✔ teach about the challenges that come with physical disabilities and how students can include peers with disability.

Our Sports Ability Program is delivered by Paralympian wheelchair tennis player, David (DJ) Johnson.

DJ speaks with young people about disability and inclusion whilst also teaching them (Olympic!) wheelchair sports skills.

This free program is adaptable and can be delivered to meet your school's needs and requirements.

Call today to talk to us about delivering the Sports Ability Program for your school.

"Thank you DJ and Social Futures for helping us to continue to build our awareness around inclusivity through wheelchair sports at Centaur.

The impact for all our students and our wider community has been very positive and well received."
